THE REV. CHARLES HELMS, his wife Judy, and two of their four children, Terita and Terry.

Helms is new pastor

The Rev. Charles Helms has been named new pastor at the Vera Church of God, it was announced last week.

He comes to Appomattox from the Kilby Avenue Church of God in Suffolk. Before then, he pastored eight of his 15 years in North Carolina, five and a half years in Kentucky, and two years in Virginia.

He is married to Judy Whitley Helms: Both are from Oakboro, North Carolina.

The couple have four children: Todd, 19, who is now living in North Carolina; Tana, 17, who is in Suffolk finishing summer school, Terita, 14, and Terri, 12, both in Vera.

The church congregation invites everyone in and around Vera and Appomattox to come and here the new pastor.

Two receive degrees

Two local men received master of divinity degrees during commencement exercises at Emory University June 9.

David Drinkard, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Drinkard of Route 3, Appomattox, and Ronald Kent Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morris of Route 2, Concord both received the Master of Divinity degree at the schools 141st graduation exercises.

Howard Lamar, dean of Yale College and an Emory alumnus, was speaker for the event.

Emory President James T. Laney conferred approximately 1,400 degrees to students in the various disciplines.

Rogers takes new job

Formerly a teacher, coach and director of Pittsylvania County's alternative school, Will Rogers has left the mainstream of education for a new job - executive director of the Danville Association for Retarded Citizens.

Rogers, 33, of 339 Townes Street in Danville, will start work June 30 as Director of the 26-year-old association which is primarily responsible for the Fred T. Hatcher Center, a sheltered workshop for over 60 retarded adults.

Rogers' first task will be to raise about $40,000 and increase the membership of the organization.

A native of Appomattox, Rogers holds a B. A. degree in social sciences (cum laude) from Lynchburg College and a Master's degree in educational administration and supervision from the University of Virginia.

He has taught in Campbell, Appomattox and Pittsylvania counties. He coached basketball at Dan River High School for five years and at Averett College for a year.

His wife, the former Gayle Clements, is a secretary at the Averett College Reading Center. They have three daughters-Mandy, 13, Penny, 12 and Julie, 9.

Rogers is the son of Mrs. Frances Rogers, and the late Mr. Frank W. Rogers, and the grandson of Mrs. Helen B. Gunter, all of Appomattox.

Scout troop returns from High Knoll adventure

Boy Scout Troop 546 of Appomatox sent several boys on an adventuresome week known as High Knoll Trail.

Four boys, Life Scout Mike Carmody, Star Scout Bently Nash, Star Scout Roger Steinkamp and Second Class Scout Todd Thompson, along with two adults, Asst. Scoutmaster Allen Harwell and Committeeman Ron Steinkamp, joined with four unattached boys from other troops to form a crew of ten.

For five days and six nights the crew backpacked from one base camp to another. They hiked a total of 35 miles to take part in a different program at each of five base camps. All the gear needed, food, utensils, clothing, tents, etc, was packed by the crew the entire week.

The High Knoll program is presented by the Blue Ridge Mountain Council of the Boy Scouts of America and is patterned after the program at the National BSA reservation in Philmont, N.M. Each day the boys were exposed to horsemanship, archaeology, lumbering, rock climbing, or mountain man black powder rifle shooting.

Each boy had an individual opportunity to try each element in the program. In the rock climbing, for example, each boy climbed up a rock face 50 ft. high then repelled down over an overhanging cliff.

All activities were closely supervised and extra safety precautions were added.

Fortunately, the hiking aches and foot blisters were the only occasions for breaking out the first aid kits.

Indeed, this was a high adventure week with healthy interesting activities which allowed many boys to see, learn, and do things for the first time. Some of these activities have become areas of continuing interests to boys in the past and perhaps this year, an Appomattox boy may have found a new area of interest.

Scout Troop 546 is sponsored by the Lions Club. Weekly meetings are held every Wednesday at St. Annes Church. Interested boys 11 to 18 are welcome.

Meeting nixed

The regular monthly meeting of the Appomattox Volunteer Fire Department has been canceled, according to a department spokesman.
